What is a Suffix?

A suffix is an affix that is attached to a root word, changing its meaning. Some suffixes are as common as adding an s or es to make the word plural.

Some suffixes are used for making comparisons as in funny, funnier, and funniest.

Other suffixes change the grammar of a word and are used to indicate past tense by adding -ed.

Sometimes suffixes change the root word from a noun into an adjective and a verb into an adverb as in friend to friendly and help into helpful.

Why Are Suffixes Important?
